TO OUR PATRONS.

We have the pleasure to present our "1876 Centennial Appendix" to our Catalogue and Price List of 1873.

The articles contained herein comprise all those named in our Appendix No. 1, 1874, Appendix No. 2, 1875, and all the new goods produced at our several factories since the publication of our large Catalogue of 1873.

The general approval and acceptance of the FIGURED ENAMELED and BRONZE METAL GOODS, DOOR BELLS, &c., offered by us the last three years, justifies the expense, and seems to demand increased efforts on our part to continue the production of new styles of various articles in our line; therefore, we would ask for a careful examination and comparison of our goods, to verify our former declarations of improvement and perfection in quality, style, &c.

We employ first-class artists to design new patterns, and ingenious mechanics to invent and improve our machinery; such inventions of design and improvement we secure at considerable expense, by Letters Patent; yet, we regret there are people in competition with us who, disregarding our legal and moral rights, are using our inventions without our consent. These articles referred to are marked in our Catalogues "Patented" or "Patent Applied For;" therefore dealers are reminded of their obligation to consider our rights while we are prosecuting our claims in the Courts of the United States.

Referring to the Circular in the first pages of our Catalogue and Price List of 1873, we adhere to the rules therein stated, and we make no changes, except by dividing our business into three different departments, wherein we adopt special terms of sale for each class, as per special discount sheets issued only to the Trade.
